A Housewarming.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Entenmann were visited by several of their friends last Monday evening in their new home at 1933 Lincoln road northeast, and were given a housewarming. The visit took them by complete surprise, and the evening was most pleasant. Mr. and Mrs. J. Schrod and Mr. and Mrs. F. Ehling of the District were present; also Mr. and Mrs. H. Peck, Mr. and Mrs. George Held and Mr. and Mrs. A. Robertson of Riverside, and Mrs. Charles Molyneux of Hyattsville and Mrs. Brewer and niece of Cottage City. Dancing was enjoyed.

Returned From Florida.

Miss Melanie Gordon has returned to her home, 2019 19th street, after a three-month visit to Commander and Mrs. Warren J. Terhune at the naval station at Key West and visiting her cousin, Miss Margaret Tucker, at 60 Riverside drive, New York.

Weddings Last Week.

A beautiful wedding took place Monday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin F. Carrick, Mount Hickory Farm, near Capitol Heights, Md., when Miss Edith Estelle Luhn of Baltimore, Md., became the bride of the son, Mr. Raymond Carrick. The bride wore a becoming traveling suit of tan serge, with hat to match, trimmed with pink plumes. Miss Mary Carrick and Mr. Ralph Carrick, sister and brother of the bridegroom, were the only attendants. Rev. Father Schwallen, pastor of St. Mathias Church, Capitol Heights, Md., performed the ceremony, which was followed by a reception. Mr. and Mrs. Carrick left for Buffalo and Niagara Falls, N. Y., upon their return they will reside in Baltimore, Md. Among the guests present at the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Luhn and grandson and Mrs. Joseph Carrick of Baltimore, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Wright and family of Kensington, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. George Ketchum of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. T. Alton Russell and little daughter, Mrs. Joseph Criste and son Robert, Mrs. William H. Brown, Miss Agnes and Master Edwin Brown, Mrs. Robert Brenahan, Mrs. Robert C. Criste and Miss Amy A. Criste of Washington, D. C.

Lilies and roses against a background of palms, ferns and autumn leaves formed the setting for the marriage of Miss Helen J. McLane, daughter of Mrs. Nellie A. McLane, and Mr. Anthony L. Mayhew, which took place Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock at the Holy Name Church.

Rev. Father A. J. Carey performed the ceremony, which was followed by a nuptial mass. Mr. Harry O'Meara sang during the ceremony, and Mr. Stephen Lant and Mr. John Burns gave several solos during the mass. The bridegroom was in a white tuxedo, and the bride wore a white gown with a large white picture hat, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Marian McLane, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor, and Mrs. Mayhew was the bridesmaid. They wore gowns of novelty tulle with large lace picture hats, and carried bouquets of Killarney roses. Little Miss Helen Kelley, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl.

Mr. Robert Fitzgerald, cousin of the bride, was best man for Mr. Mayhew. A breakfast followed at the home of the bride's mother. Mr. and Mrs. Mayhew left the same evening for New York, via Norfolk, the latter wearing a becoming suit of burgundy cloth trimmed with moleskin, with a hat of velvet and fur. They will be at home after October 15.

Miss Lottie Davis of southern Maryland and Mr. Fenwick Smith of Tacoma, Park, Md., were married Tuesday evening at the Wilson Memorial parsonage by the Rev. James L. McLean. The bride was attended by her sisters, Mrs. E. F. Hays, Mrs. Ella Robinson and Mrs. Annie Howard, and the groom by Mr. and Mrs. Smith will make their home in Tacoma Park, Md.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Ray was the scene of a beautiful wedding Wednesday evening, when their daughter, Miss Henrietta Marie Ray, became the bride of Mr. Geary Warren Lewis.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. A. A. Hobson of Waltham, Mass., uncle of the bride. The rooms were decorated with dahlias and palms. The bride wore a gown of princess lace with a court train of brocade.

Her filmy tulle veil was caught with clusters of lilies of the valley and she carried a shower bouquet of bride roses. Dr. Charles T. Griffith acted as best man. A reception followed, when the newly married couple were assisted in receiving by the bride's mother, whose gown was of gray chiffon and panne velvet with touches of rose satin. Mrs. H. W. Marshall, mother of the bridegroom, who wore black satin, Mrs. Waldo E. Palmer, sister of the bride, whose marriage took place recently, wore her wedding gown and carried a large bouquet of pink roses, and Mrs. Arthur Middleton, sister of the bridegroom, was in pale gray tulle combined with silver.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis left later for their wedding trip, the latter wearing a suit of white cloth with tulle and lace. They will be at home to their friends after November 1 at 83 W street northwest.

Haight-Cook.

A wedding of interest took place yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Church of Our Savior, when Miss Hannah Jane Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Cook of Winchester, Va., became the bride of Mr. Harvey Lawrence Haight, Rev. Joseph Fletcher, D. D., rector of the church, performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a traveling suit of green and brown mixed cloth with a pink velvet hat and a carriage bouquet of bride roses. Miss Lottie Isabelle Parsons, the bride's only attendant, wore a green cloth costume with a black picture hat and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Mr. Allen Haight, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Haight left immediately after the ceremony for Atlantic City. They will be at home after October 15 at 505 Rhode Island avenue northwest.

Pre-Nuptial Lunch.

Miss Katherine Noel of 1242 Girard street northwest entertained Saturday afternoon at luncheon and bridge in compliment to Miss Anne Leckie of 1335 Harvard street northwest, whose marriage to Mr. Leroy Freeman of New York occurs Saturday, October 7.

Gossip of Society Folk

The Earl of Essex at the age of fifty-nine years died at Newmarket, England on the 25th instant. This announcement means genuine bereavement in a notably happy marriage between an American woman and a titled Englishman, one of those extremely rare instances in which the fortune of the woman played scant, if any, part, for the reason that the Countess of Essex could never at any time have been rated as a wealthy American.

The Countess of Essex will be well remembered by the older members of Washington society as the genuinely beautiful Miss Adele Grant, who, with her father and mother, came here the latter part of the first Cleveland administration. With the William C. Whitneys as their social sponsor, and coming as the family did with the aura of Miss Grant having already, young as she was, been known in London as a court beauty, they were at once established in the most exclusive set. Leasing Mr. and Mrs. Marmion residence, on I street a few doors east of the William C. Whitneys house, the Grants returned to them by a number of small but most perfect dinner parties, as neither their tastes nor inclinations admitted of thought of any large functions.

Between Mrs. Cleveland and the young court beauty there sprang up a fast friendship, and Miss Adele Grant's presence at every White House entertainment was a lone star that drew crowds to gaze upon her and her marvellously simple looking but always charming costumes. Particularly was she a favorite in the diplomatic corps not only because of her beauty, but because she was a talented linguist, most of whose childhood had been spent abroad.

Then came the sudden death of her father, upon his return one night from the Metropolitan Club. The Marmion house was given up following the then unusual sale of all of the court beauty's stunning costumes, for which event invitations were penned broadcast by her maid to the maids of every smart woman in Washington.

A year later came the cabled announcement of Miss Adele Grant's engagement, speedily followed by that of her marriage to the Earl of Essex, with whom, like all the princesses in the good old fairy tales, she lived happily ever after.

The cabled announcement last week that Lieut. Col. Earl Peversham had been killed in action while leading his battalion on the 15th instant recalls an unusual incident of his courtship of Lady Marjorie Greville, eldest daughter of the Earl of Warwick, whom he later married. The incident, which survives him, was when Lady Marjorie Greville was a mere slip of a girl her mother, in view of the financial depression of the noble old house of Warwick, made her first bold venture into the world of trade. This was the establishment of a lingerie shop in one of the ultra fashionable shopping streets just off Piccadilly.

The venture proved most successful, and all went well until the time came when the beautiful young daughter was to be presented at court. Every arrangement for this function had been completed, thanks to the well filled cash drawer of the lingerie shop, when the imperial mandate of the court went forth that the lingerie shop was definitely from that time forth to be sold or shut up. Eilett, the wife of the Countess of Warwick marrying into the peerage the matter was settled.

The Countess of Warwick's immediate withdrawal from all connection with the lingerie shop was quickly followed by the desired presentation of her daughter, and before the close of the first season Lady Marjorie's engagement to the Earl Peversham was joyfully announced, and the wedding arrangements speedily accomplished. The marriage has proved most happy.

Charles E. Hughes, the republican candidate for the presidency, has the unique distinction of having an extract from one of his speeches used on the menu card of a railway dining car.

The steward of the car, who is a great admirer of Mr. Hughes, has had this extract printed after the menu.

left the battlefields of Europe for ideas in hats, coats, gowns and dress accessories, and has peacefully come home to roost. The Washington society girl is now copying her high, draped collars and filmy jabots from old historic portraits of men that were famous in America during and after the revolution. One young woman has the most alluring neckwear made up from sketches which she hurriedly made in the library on the campus of Washington and Lee University at Lexington, Va. This library contains rows of portraits of some of the best looking men the world has produced who are heroes in American history. The style of neckwear worn by those dead Lees and Washingtons, with their Kinship, is so artistic and so fitting an adjunct to the directorate style of the season and the collars of Lafayette and Robespierre, that it makes the ensemble of the costume complete.

The political situation between the two daughters of the late John Hay, Mrs. Payne Whitney and Mrs. Wadsworth, is decidedly odd. Mrs. Payne Whitney, as chairman of the woman's Hughes campaign train, which leaves New York city tomorrow for its great western rallies, places her as hostess at the breakfast to be given at the Plaza Hotel at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Not only this, but Mrs. Payne Whitney, like her sister-in-law, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, is an ardent suffragist and a real worker for the cause. Mrs. Wadsworth, wife of the New York senator, her younger sister, is, on the contrary, just as ardent an anti and just as zealous a worker for her cause.

That both the daughters of John Hay, who are so well remembered here in Washington, where they spent their girlhood, made their debuts and from where they were each married, should be pronounced republicans goes without saying. But it is odd just the same—most unusually odd—when you come to think over it, that Mrs. Payne Whitney and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, each the wife of a son of the late William C. Whitney, whose name is forever identified with all that is best in the democratic party, should now be actively campaigning for the republican party.
